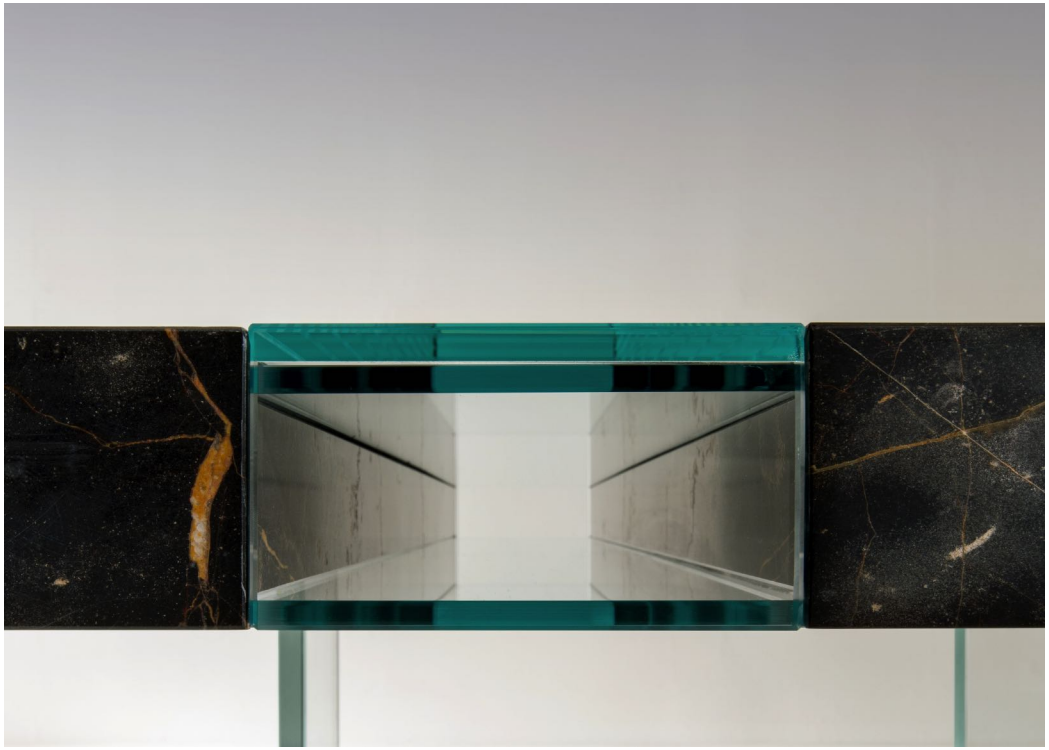
Elemento Modular Table

LAURAMERONI

design . collection



Elemento Table

Elemento is a rectangular modular table with a glass and marble top, supported by a glass base. The table's length is customizable by adding or subtracting modules.

The origins of the project lies in the idea of building an extremely light-looking table, based on the alternation of composite materials, thus creating an 'empty-full' effect. The table top almost appears to be floating in space.

The sequencing of the slats offers a sensation of standing stones suspended in the air. Once processing of the bond between the two materials is done, it allows for a vision of different yet perfectly fused components, thus embellishing the table surface.

Also available in other finish options.
